

On 6 September 2012, Headquarters Multinational Corps Northeast (HQ MNC NE) representatives took part in the Final Coordination Conference and reconnaissance for the exercise Anaconda12.

The main aim of that event was to coordinate all outstanding issues with regards to the organisation of so-called "LIVEX" which stands for a live exercise with troops.

The different units will execute all military tasks in the field planned by the staffs based on the provided scenario information. HQ MNC NE will play a small part in the LIVEX, too. The involved element will be the Tactical Command Post (TAC CP). It will be a small staff element with a couple of vehicles with the Corps' Commander in charge, able to command and control operations from the front. During the exercise, TAC CP will be relocated to different positions to support the command and control of the operations in different stages.

In addition to that, during the conference the delegation from the Szczecin Corps also coordinated real life support and real life communications information systems issues.
